

ARRESTS NEAR IN CHICAGO GANG MASSACRE, REPORT

NINE PLACES
RAIDED; SOME
BOOZE TAKENAll But Two of Places
Raided Yesterday
Were in Dixon

A long talked of clean-up of alleged liquor dispensing establishments in Dixon which has formed the subject of many rumors since the holidays, came rather unexpectedly yesterday afternoon when about a score of officers, deputy sheriffs and members of the police department swooped down on nine places, which were raided for liquor. The mop-up was the result of investigations which have been conducted from the offices of the State's Attorney and Sheriff it was reported today.

All but two of the raids were in the city and the largest haul of liquor was made at "Scotty" Hull's Hop Inn, where it was reported that two five-gallon jugs containing liquor were seized in the proprietor's flat above the soft drink parlor together with other bottles. Hull was arrested in a barber's chair and his bar-tender, William Cinnamon was later taken in custody on a bench warrant and taken to the county jail where he spent the night. Hull appeared before Justice J. O. Shauls and furnished bond in the sum of $1,000, his case being continued until next Tuesday.

Three Raiding Crews.
The series of raids were well planned and carried out. Three separate crews left the court house armed with search warrants for the different places to be visited. Sheriff Miller made the first trip at 1 o'clock when he visited a farm near Amboy. The officers returned, having found no liquor it was said. The raiding parties were then sent out to visit the seven places within the city limits, several being assigned to the Hop Inn raid. Sheriff Miller headed another party who visited the Roy Brooks flat, 118½ East First street. Brooks and a quantity of liquor found in the flat were taken to the county jail where he remained until last evening when he was released on bonds signed by Scott Hull and his hearing continued until next Tuesday.

The raiders then divided into three groups and swept down on three places. One crew visited a store room on Pearl avenue conducted by Bert Unangst, but found no liquor. Unangst was later taken in custody on a bench warrant charging him with selling intoxicating liquor, and he spent the night in the county jail.

Walked Into Raiders.
Another force of officers visited the L. A. Wilson home, 114 Noble avenue, where it was said that Mrs. Wilson ran to an open window and dashed the contents of a jar into the snow. Robert Blackburn was arrested at the Wilson home and together with L. A. Wilson was taken to the county jail. Wilson arrived from his work as the raiding party was about to leave. It was reported that Blackburn attempted to destroy evidence which had been seized by the officers and it was expected that a charge of resisting an officer would be preferred against him today.

Another home on Noble avenue was visited by a third group of raiders at the same time but no liquor was found. The raiders then set out on another triple mop-up, one force going to the west end of the city which proved a "water-haul." Another crew called at the Henry Fisher home on East River street, where it was reported that two women in the house succeeded in breaking a large container before the officers entered. A small amount of liquor was reported to have been found and Mrs. Fisher was taken to the county jail, where she remained until late last evening when she was released on bonds of $1,000 and her case continued until Tuesday.

East of the City.
Sheriff Miller headed the third squad which visited the home of Mrs. Lena Turco about three miles east of the city on the Black Hawk Trail. A quantity of liquor was reported to have been found hidden in a barrel of potatoes in the cellar. Charles Sudano, an Italian, claiming Rockford as his home, and who admitted not having been employed for the last ten weeks, claimed ownership of the liquor and was taken to the county jail. A charge of possessing intoxicating liquor was filed against Sudano before Justice J. O. Shauls at the county jail last night and his case continued until next Tuesday.

Tracey Jones and Cecil Miller were later arrested on bench warrants and taken to the county jail where they spent the night. The officers worked rapidly and had completed their program of work laid out for yesterday afternoon before 6 o'clock, their activities representing one of the biggest mop-ups of alleged liquor dispensaries in Dixon in many months.

CONGRESS TAKES
NO HOLIDAY OVER
PRESENT WEEK END

Too Much Business is Now
Pending to Permit
Taking Recess

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—There was no weekend holiday for Congress today, both House and Senate deciding that with comparatively few legislative days remaining of the present session all of the time should be utilized in disposing of as much pending business as possible.

The Jones bill, which would put heavier penalties on liquor law violators, was the question before the Senate, with an agreement to limit debate beginning at 3 o'clock. In the House immigration bills were up for consideration.

One bill with no chance of passage at this session was favorably reported by the Senate Interstate Commerce committee. It was the bill to facilitate railroad consolidations. The purpose of having it approved at this time was to get it before the country for discussion.

Before another Senate committee Representative Wurzbach, the only Republican member of Congress from Texas, declared that enormous sums had been taken from Texas Republican office holders by the Republican organization in that state. He was testifying in the investigation of patronage which has been going on throughout the session.

Secretary Kellogg testified before the House Foreign Affairs committee on a bill to have the President place embargoes on arms shipments to aggressor nations in time of war. The Secretary said that it would be an un-neutral act for the President to designate any nation as an aggressor.

The House Ways and Means committee considered the tariff on diamonds. Walter N. Kahn of New York urged lower duties on the theory that smuggling would be prevented by such an act.

The bill to extend the life of the Radio Commission was reported favorably by the House Merchant Marine committee.

SNOWSLIDES IN COLORADO HAVE CUT OFF MINERS

Their Food Supply to be Exhausted in Few Days They Phone

Durango, Colo., Feb. 16—(AP)—Cut off from the world by snowslides for two weeks, 385 miners at the Sunnyside mine and mill north of the isolated town of Silverton, near here, today had only enough food to last three or four days.

By telephone, their only means of communication with the outside, the miners sent word last night that their provisions were low. A supply of meat, butter and eggs would be exhausted in a few days, they said.

Efforts to move mail and provisions to Silverton and Eureka, another isolated town, on a mule pack train have failed. Great snow slides between Silverton and Durango have buried the railroad tracks under snow that in some places reaches a depth of 200 feet. An army of shovelers has been at work ten days cutting through the blockade and it was estimated that it would take that much longer to get through.

Two snow shoe runners have been given a contract to attempt to carry mail into the snowbound settlement.

Three Shot in Hold
Up at Granite City

Granite City, Ill., Feb. 16—(AP)—Three men were wounded, two seriously, in an exchange of shots in an attempted holdup of a roadhouse near Stallings, six miles north of Granite City, early today.

Fred Lee, 48, proprietor of the roadhouse, and Lester Squire, 26, are in a hospital here. Leo Prater of Madison, Ill., the third man wounded, was taken to the county jail at Edwardsville for questioning.

The shooting occurred about 3 a. m. Information given police was that two or more men attempted to hold up Lee and when he told them he had no money they sought to kidnap him. He resisted and the exchange of shots followed.

Former Dixonite

Mrs. George Williams was called to Plainfield, Ia., by the illness of her father, John Julian, who has been very ill for two weeks. Yesterday Mr. Williams received a telegram stating that Mr. Julian had passed away. Mr. Julian, who was aged 95 years, was at one time a resident of Dixon, and will be remembered by the older residents as a man of kindly character and many friends, all of whom will regret to learn of his death.

LINDBERGH LONG OVERDUE
IN NATIONAL CAPITAL ON HIS RETURN FROM SOUTH

No Report on Aviator
Since He Left Charleston
at 6:47 A. M.

BULLETIN

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 16—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed on the beach ten miles south of Cape Hatteras, the Cape Hatteras coast guard station radioed The Associated Press this afternoon.

The Coast Guardsmen at the Cape Hatteras station said that they had not yet received word as to whether the airplane was damaged.

The cause of the landing was not known at the station but it was said that the weather was bad and visibility low.

Lindbergh left Charleston, S. C. this morning at 6:47 o'clock to fly to Washington. His non-arrival here had caused considerable anxiety.

BULLETIN

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was more than three hours overdue here at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in his flight to Washington from Charleston, S. C.

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who left Charleston, S. C., at 6:47 a. m. Eastern Standard time had not arrived here early this afternoon. Army officers said he should have arrived here by 11 a. m. if no intermediate landing was made.

Weather reports showed rain and fog over Lindbergh's route and it was believed here that, because of these atmospheric conditions, the pilot had decided to land at some southeastern flying field.

The airways division of the Light House Service began efforts to locate the New York-Paris flier after he had been overdue for an hour.

Flight Sergeant Roy W. Hooe, at Bolling Field, Chief Mechanic on the endurance flight of the Question Mark, said Col. Lindbergh's plane's tank capacity was about 140 gallons, which would give the flier a maximum of about seven hours in the air.

Only with unusually favorable flying weather might the plane be expected to average less than twenty gallons of gasoline per hour, in the opinion of field mechanics.

The Lighthouse Service said it was in constant communication by radio with its stations at Atlanta, Richmond, Greensboro and Spartanburg, but had heard nothing of Lindbergh.

Officials of Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., who expected Col. Lindbergh here for a conference, said they felt no anxiety over his failure to reach Washington on schedule. Paul Henderson, vice-president of the air line, suggested that he may have decided to go on to New York.

Henderson said that Lindbergh hoped to go to New York after his conference here, and that he may have decided to change his schedule.

M. W. A.—R. N. A. in Joint Meet on Tuesday

One of the most important days for the Modern Woodmen of America and the Royal Neighbors of America will be held in their hall on Tuesday evening.

It will start off at 7 p. m. with a picnic supper for the members of both orders and their families and friends and at 8 p. m. there will be a talk by Neighbor Griffith of Bloomington, one of the best speakers on the platform. Moving pictures will also be shown which will be of interest to everyone present and there will be some other features on the program to be announced later.

This meeting is open to the public and it is the desire of both orders to have a packed house as it will be a night long to be remembered.

Electricity Performs
Painless Operations

For his work in developing surgical apparatus, which substitutes electric current for the knife and is said to eliminate pain and the need for anaesthetics from operations, the John Scott medal and a $1,000 prize from the city of Philadelphia has been awarded Dr. W. T. Bowie head of the department of biophysics of Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois.

Some growths on the brain can be removed with the new apparatus while the patient is fully conscious and aware of what is going on. The electric current not only makes the incision, but at the same time it seals the blood vessels so that in operations usually accompanied by great loss of blood, no bleeding occurs.

Two Robbers Shot
in Holdup Attempt

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 16—(AP)—Three men were shot, two probably fatally, in an attempt to hold up the Metropolitan hotel here early today. The wounded included the hotel proprietor, Joseph Lee, and two robbers.

Wild deer, twelve in number, and living in the wooded region known as the "Deils" near Byron, have been killed in the past few days by wandering dogs.

C. N. Poffenberger, of Poio, deputy game warden, says that unless farmers keep their dogs away from the improvised grazing places, which have been provided to feed the deer through the bad weather, they will be shot. Six deer were found dead early this week and Wednesday night six more were found, all the victims of attacks by dogs.

The feeding of the deer has been done by farmers in the vicinity of the Deils, because of the snow and ice depriving them of their natural food, and they are indignant over the killing. They are organizing and plan to kill the canines upon sight.

MELVILLE STONE,
A. P. COUNSELOR,
DIED LAST NIGHT

An Outstanding Figure in Journalism Passed to His Reward

New York, Feb. 16—(AP)—Melville E. Stone, for 28 years General Manager of The Associated Press and for half a century an outstanding figure in journalism, died last night at his home, 120 East 75th Street.

In his 81st year, he had been in failing health for four months. Death came quietly at 8:50 p. m. With him were his wife and daughter. The cause of death was arteriosclerosis.

In 1921 Mr. Stone retired as General Manager of The Associated Press because of age and became Counselor and Secretary. He served as Counselor till his death.

His journalistic career, which began when he was 20 year old, spanned one of the most vital epochs in news-gathering and distribution and was closely identified with it. The son of a Methodist circuit rider, he was successively manufacturer, newspaper publisher and banker till at the age of 45 he began his life work in the direction of unbiased and accurate cooperative news gathering and distribution.

Many Pay Tribute

Tributes to Mr. Stone were paid after his death by persons prominent in various fields of activity. There were references to him as "a true patriot." His contribution to journalism was described as "one of the greatest monuments an international figure has ever had."

Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the New York Times and one of the directors of The Associated Press, said that Mr. Stone, possessing the business qualifications of a Garry, accepted an opportunity for service to his fellow man and in old age had reason to feel that he had been fully compensated for the fortunes he sacrificed.

"I have lived from the lightning rod to the radio," Mr. Stone said last year, "and I have seen electricity changing the whole business of news gathering."

In retirement, he kept in close touch with the activities of The Associated Press, and he was frequently consulted for his advice. "I am an old man," he said at the annual meeting of the members in 1925. "It is not at all unlikely that this is the last time I shall have an opportunity to talk to you."

Regards A. P. as Duty

"I regard The Associated Press as a public duty and every public duty is a privilege. If it were not so I should never have been with you. Incidentally, The Associated Press is an opportunity for you to make money. But if money getting and public service may be joined hand in hand as I think they have been in this institution, then you have been doubly blessed."

"This is a cooperative organization, the greatest in the world, and esprit de corps is essential to success. Against great odds and by the exercise of infinite patience, we have built a great and most useful institution—one of incalculable value, in my belief, to the American theory of government. And I hope no one will challenge my firm conviction that our American theory of government is far and away the best ever devised by the sons of men, not perfect, I grant you, but the best existent."

Mrs. Martha McFarland Stone, whom he married in Chicago in 1899, survives him, as do his daughter, Miss Elizabeth Crighton Stone, and his brother, Professor Ormond Stone, formerly of the faculty of the University of Virginia. His two sons, Herbert S. Stone and Melville E. Stone Jr., died before he did. Herbert Stone was lost when the Lusitania was sunk by a German submarine.

Skull Fractured
in Kewanee Fight

Kewanee, Ill., Feb. 16—(AP)—Eddie Chandler, 126-pound Moline, Ill., boxer is in the hospital today with a basic fractured skull following a knockout blow delivered by Lou Denny of Chicago in the ninth round of their scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

Dr. Warren T. Heaps, physician for the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said there was little hope for his recovery.

Chandler and Denny fought one of the hardest battles ever seen in a Kewanee ring. Both boxers were down for the count of nine, Chandler flooring Denny in the third but the bell saved the Chicago fighter. In the ninth Denny sent the Moline boxer to the mat for the nine count but Chandler came back only to have Denny send across a short right uppercut that ended the fight.

Chandler, whose real name is Mike Bards, is married and has one child, Paul Prehn, chairman of the State Boxing Commission, was present at the show.

NEW BLIZZARDS
SWOOPING DOWN
ON CONTINENTGreat Suffering and
Many Deaths from Cold Reported

London, Feb. 16—(AP)—A new blizzard, bringing ice and snow, was sweeping down upon central Europe from Siberian steppes and the east.

Shortage of coal, gas, electricity and water developed as the intense cold from which the continent has suffered continued with little lessening. Hope arising from slight rises in temperatures in Germany was counteracted with forecasts of the new cold weather.

For England warmer weather was predicted but present conditions caused extreme discomfort and suffering. Freezing of gas mains and the danger of artificial thawing, left downtown Berlin without gas for fuel and lighting yesterday. Ice disabled the power station at Breslau, where it was 20 below zero, Fahrenheit, and that city was without electricity.

All schools at Berlin have been closed, and water and food shortages have developed.

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, reported 30 villages near there buried under an enormous snowfall. At one village five Gypsies were found dead after they had it was said, knocked in vain at peasants' homes, asking for shelter.

There was danger of Antwerp harbor being bottled up by the ice in Belgium; intense cold persisted in France where there was considerable ice on the river Seine; while London reported cancellation of sailings of passenger boats from Grimsby to the continent because of ice hazards at ports of destination.

Going to Assist
Rudder-less Ship

New York, Feb. 16—(AP)—The steamship President Harding wireless today that she had picked up an SOS call from the American freighter Padnasy and was going to her assistance in latitude 41:30 north and longitude 49:50 west.

The President Harding left New York on February 13 for Bremen. The Padnasy left New York for west African ports on February 10.

The wireless message from the President Harding which was received by the Radio Marine Corporation, said that the freighter's rudder was gone. No other details were given.

The position of the distressed freighter was estimated at about 300 miles south of Cape Race, N. F.

Lenten Thought

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

The Psalmist, poetically speaking for God, called upon men to "be still and know that I am God." But Jesus offered men rest and peace in the busy, noisy, hard-driven ways of daily life. It was not the rest and peace of retreat, but the satisfaction of a new spirit, a new yoke that made burdens easy and a new fellowship that touched life with joy in common labors and in common quest.

We should never forget that Galilee and Judea were crowded centers—fairly teeming with human life, and humming with the noise of daily existence. It was in this environment that Jesus spoke to men, and it is in this environment that He speaks to men today. He led men out into the fields and beside the still waters. He was always only to send them back refreshed to labor and life. He offered to his disciples, not success from toil, but life, and the gift of it more abundantly.

States Attorney Tells Police and Sheriff
to Clean Up City

BULLETIN

Washington, Feb. 16—(AP)—Prohibition Commissioner (Doran) said today that the statement made in Chicago yesterday by Fred D. Siloway, Deputy Prohibition Administrator, blaming the police for the killing of seven members of the Moran gang, was unauthorized and that prohibition headquarters has no evidence to show that it is true. Doran said he would investigate Siloway's charge and take whatever action he found warranted.

Chicago, Feb. 16—(AP)—Three "purple" gangsters of Detroit today were three identified through photographs as members of the gang hunted for Thursday's sextuple slaying.

They were the spies, police said, the "spotters," the advance men for murder. They were planted in advance to observe the men marked for death, note their hours of gathering, so that the actual killers would know exactly when and how to strike.

Two women and a man living across from the garage where the gang massacre took place, made the identification. From a score of photographs they picked three which they said were of men who had rented rooms overlooking the garage—rooms which they occupied during a period of days immediately preceding the slayings.

Harry and Phil Kewell, brothers, and Eddie Fletcher were the three whose pictures were identified.

Arrests Reported Near

Following the identifications police announced that the trail of Chicago's bloodiest gang murder was growing hot and that important arrests were near. But even the prospect of early and definite police action was overshadowed by several sensational aftermaths of the crime.

For one thing, George (Bugs) Moran was found, not by authorities but by newspapermen. The seven who were slain were Moran mobsmen.

For another, a fiery shaft of censure and warning was shot by State's Attorney John A. Swanson at the law enforcement agencies of Chicago and Cook county.

The State's Attorney called Police Commissioner's office, Russell, other high police officials, Sheriff's officers and county police to his office, and issued this flat:

"Enforce the gambling law, and the laws against vice.

"Obey these orders, or you'll go to prison."

Swanson issued Fiat

Swanson told them that their departments were to blame for the gang massacre. Those murders, he said, and the long list of unsolved ones that preceded it, were committed for just one reason, and that reason, he told them, was the easy money which law enforcement agencies had permitted gangsters to collect.

Shortly after midnight a sweeping order went forth from Commissioner Russell's office. All police captains were instructed to "Nose and keep close all gambling houses, vice resorts, soft drink parlors, speakeasies, beer flats and any place where alcohol is handled."

George (Bugs) Moran, who left a hospital only a few days ago after an attack of influenza, blamed the murder of his seven associates on the Al Capone gang. Capone himself, the outstanding figure in Chicago gangland, is in Florida.

The theory of Frederick D. Siloway, Assistant Administrator of the federal prohibition law in Chicago, that actual policemen took part in the crime, had not been dropped today, although police said their investigation tended more and more to disprove it.

Marion, Ill., Feb. 16—(AP)—Two Burger gangsters, Leslie Simpson and Fred E. Wooten, who recently attempted to escape from the county jail today began serving life sentences in prison for the murders of State Highway Patrolman Lory Price and his wife. They were taken to the penitentiary yesterday by deputy sheriffs.

Butter Market

Chicago, Feb. 16—(AP)—Light arrivals are largely responsible for some tightening up of the butter market.

Buyers are finding it more difficult to fill requirements, and are purchasing slightly in excess of immediate needs. For the most part, receivers experience little difficulty in effecting a fairly close clearance of arrivals.

A noticeable feature is that Chicago prices are relatively high as compared with New York. Although the freight differential between New York and Chicago is approximately 1 1/2c, Chicago prices on top scores have been only 1/2c below and at times on a par with the New York quotations. As a result, considerable butter which would otherwise have gone to New York has stopped at Chicago.

Production reports indicate some increase, but weather conditions throughout most of the heaviest producing sections have been unsatisfactory, and roads in many sections are bad, clogged with snow and ice.

Weekly Grain

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)

Chicago, Feb. 16 (AP)—Chances of future scarcity of breadstuffs are at present apparently winning a hotly contested wrestling match against excess of immediate supplies. According to statements today from trade authorities here, upturns in wheat prices are based largely on prospects that the wheat crop to be harvested from next July forward will be smaller than last year not only in the United States but throughout most of the whole northern hemisphere. For at least the time being, this circumstances seems to be overmastering the fact that the United States and Canada have exactly on hand record-breaking accumulations of wheat.

Compared with a week ago, wheat values this morning were 3/4c to 5/4c @ 5 1/2c a bushel higher, with corn 1c to 1 1/2c up, oats 1/2c to 3/4c off to 5c advanced, and provisions varying from 17c decline to a rise of 22c.

Assertions circulated here that considerable basis exists for possibly one of the liveliest crop scares met with in a generation are explained as due to reports indicating that the winter wheat crop in the north of the equator the world over, with lowest temperatures known in a hundred years or more for the greater part of Europe. In this connection, it is further pointed out that although uneasiness about the wheat crop outlook in the United States is not unusual at this time of year, European experts have seldom heretofore expressed fears of damage at such a period. About all, however, that the best authorities say can be definitely announced is that the abnormal widespread low temperatures will have on winter crops is that conditions have not been favorable, and that this applies to around 100,000,000 acres of which 40,000,000 are in the United States.

Traders friendly to higher prices for wheat are just now stressing records of the four years previous to the 1928-29 season showing that wheat bought during the last part of February and held for any considerable time has returned a profit to the buyer. In 1927-28 the profit amounted to 30c a bushel and in 1926-27 to about 15c. Attention is also being drawn to the fact that this season the world's shipments of wheat have reached a total weekly aggregate unequalled heretofore in the history of the grain trade. As against these factors, nevertheless, there is no denying that the wheat market of late has almost daily been breaking the season's high-price records, that arrivals of wheat at domestic terminals are heavy, and that the United States wheat visible supply although decreasing is still 49,000,000 bu. more than the total a year ago.

Corn prices reflect the fact that the period for field work is close at hand in the south and southwest, and that a decided let-up is looked for in the movement of corn from those sections. Besides, the price of hogs has been on the upgrade of late to such an extent that there is now a good profit in feeding corn even on the basis of Corn at $1.00 a bushel in Chicago. The other side of the picture is that corn export demand has failed to measure up to bullish reports which recently were current about feed conditions in Europe. Increased country movement of oats and slackening of shipping call here has given a somewhat easier undertone to the oats market.

Provisions are averaging higher, aided by what is being referred to as wonderful domestic consumer demand, together with improving outlook abroad.

Wall Street

New York, Feb. 16—(AP) The determined efforts of federal reserve authorities to effect a reduction in brokers' borrowings inspired further liquidation in today's stock market. Radio (old stock) broke 16 points and scores of other issues fell 2 to 8 points, trading was unusually heavy for a half holiday session, sales approximating 2,500,000 shares.

Bear trading was reported to be particularly heavy from traders win-ting at Palm Beach and other southern resorts.

There was nothing in the overnight trade news to influence the price movement. Most of the weekly mercantile and business reviews reported prosperous conditions.

Some fears were expressed however, that the decline in stocks if carried too far, would have a bad psychological effect on business.

Selling pressure was particularly effective against the so-called pool specialties. Wright Aeronautical, Allied Chemical, National Cash Register, International Combustion, International Telephone, Electric Auto Lite, Otis Elevator, Motor Products, American Power & Light and Union Carbide all sold 5 to 8 points below last night's final quotations.

The closing was heavy.

DETERMINE GAS TAX BILL MUST NOT BE CHANGED

Administration's Leaders Fight in Committee Against Changes

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 16—(AP)—Administration supporters in the senate are determined that the gas tax bill shall be reported out of committee without amendment or alteration.

Two hearings on the bill have been held by the Senate Revenue committee, one of which was a joint session with the same committee in the House, and thus far the administration men have successfully parried all efforts to amend the bill.

So far there has been no expressed opposition except as to the division of the money collected. The Municipal league is determined that cities shall be awarded one-third of the collections to enable them to build pavements.

At the hearing Thursday afternoon, an attempt was made to amend the bill to divert funds another way. The highway superintendent of St. Clair county wanted to amend the bill so that counties which issued bonds to build secondary roads, under the provisions of the state aid road act, without waiting for the receipt of the state's share of the cost, would be paid out of the receipts of the gas tax.

His proposal was that after the state has set aside the fund for repayment of the tax collected on non-taxable gasoline and extracted the cost of administering the act from total collections, another fund should be set aside to repay these counties the implied debt the state owes them. After these three funds are set aside he would then divide the money as proposed.

His proposal was opposed by Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer of the state, who said that the bill had been carefully drawn to eliminate any possible action by the Supreme court, and if amendments were tried on it that the bill would certainly prove vulnerable to legal attacks. Sheets said this proposal would be unjust to the counties which had not issued bonds.

The next, and probably the last committee hearing on the bill will be next Wednesday afternoon.

Stiffer opposition than has developed so far will be necessary to keep it from being reported out as it stands. Senator Martin B. Carlson, president pro tem of the Senate, is a member of the committee and has publicly announced that he does not want the bill amended. Senators are chary with proposed amendments and have not offered any.

Admittedly a test of the administration strength in the general assembly, it is expected that opposition to the bill from certain Chicago senators will not deter its steady progress through the senate.

Anton J. Cermak, defeated democratic candidate for United States senator, has wired Chicago democrat in the senate to "not abandon Chicago in this matter." Senator Thomas Courtney of Chicago, a champion of the municipal league program, is one of the arch foes of the gas tax. He fought the measure two years ago and his attacks on the measure while Sheets was discussing it last week leave little doubt as to his stand against it this time.

REFRAINS—

(California)
NOW this is the fall:
An occasional song,
An occasional rose;
Of last zinnias, a few,
The dahlia's last glow;
The mocking bird's song—
A snatch as he goes,
A-flitting, from roof,
From tree, and from pole.
What he sings in the fall
Is something recalled
Of all that he sang
When summer was new
And evenings were long:
He has something to tell:
He still has a song.
For courage is young,
And winter is kind;
And besides that he knows
That joy will run high
Again in the spring.
To comfort us so,
He comes, perhaps once,
Oh, late in the fall.

Stitch and Chatter Club Valentine Party

There was a good attendance of the Stitch and Chatter club at the meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Eller. The main feature of the meeting was the Valentine box and much fun was derived from this amusement. Radio music was enjoyed. A tempting luncheon was served, decorations being in flowers and valentines. The afternoon proved one unusual enjoyment to all present.
The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Orville Heckman in two weeks, Feb. 28th.

Valentine Bridge Party Last Evening

Last evening Miss Virginia Van Bibber was hostess at a very charming Valentine bridge party at her home, entertaining guests at two tables of bridge.
Very pretty decorations in the Valentine spirit and Valentine colors of red and white decorated the home and the tables. Flowers and trees in vase used, and the favors in valentine motifs were especially pretty.
At bridge Miss Virginia Klein was awarded the favor for high honors. Miss Ella Louise Raffenberg won the second favor. A dainty luncheon was served in red and white matching the valentine idea. All spent a most enjoyable evening.

Twelve Guests at Charming Dinner

A very charming dinner for twelve guests was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Ives. The decorations for the elegantly appointed table were new and beautiful, and included the new jeweled trees in vogue now. Lovely Valentine favors reminded one of the season of the year. After dinner a delightful evening was enjoyed.

Alma Rubens Fighting The Narcotic Habit

Los Angeles, Feb. 16—(AP)—The Examiner today said that members of the family of Alma Rubens, screen star, had made it known that she is fighting to reclaim herself from narcotic addiction.

The newspaper quoted Miss Rubens' husband, Richard Cortez, also a motion picture star, as having said: "I don't know how long Alma has been using narcotics. It has been only in the last few months that she has been so hysterical that there could no longer be any doubt."

It was said that investigations had been made by state and federal authorities and by the newspaper itself in determining that 24 or more narcotic prescriptions had been issued to the film star.

Miss Rubens entered a sanitarium recently after having figured in two cases involving complaints to the police. She fled from a physician and his assistant when they came to take her to the sanitarium but was caught after a chase through the noonday crowds of Hollywood boulevards.

Five Hundred Club Was Entertained

Nelson—Mrs. Ray Wilson delightfully entertained the members of the "500" club at her home south of Nelson Wednesday afternoon. There were two tables of "500" and one of buraco. High score in "500" went to Mrs. C. H. Walker, with Mrs. Edw. Corgieson holding second high and Mrs. John Emmitt low. In buraco Mrs. J. M. Miller held high and Mrs. George Onken low. Mrs. James Julian and Mrs. Mike Julian of Dixon were guests from out-of-town.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE J. ALDER

When woman breaks the law, she insists on arguing herself and everyone else into believing that she has only done what she had every right in the world to do and that the law is a silly old thing, anyway. When men break a law they accept the fact that they have erred and are criminal and only ask to get their punishment and have it over with.

This sums up the attitude of Duncan Alkman, writing in the current "Harper's." He discusses men and women as violators of everything from traffic to our moral code. A man pleads guilty to speeding and knows that it is wrong; a woman argues that the law is an insult to her individual case and that she had a right to speed. Men plead alibies, he continues, when caught in violations of the conventional and moral code. A woman argues that she is above such sordid considerations and had every right to fulfill her own love life in her own individual way.

WHY IS IT?
"The ladies have been so long taught to consider themselves our letter angels that they find it difficult, if not impossible, to abandon the advantageous pose of moral superiority even when indulging in conduct suggesting quite the opposite," he writes.

It might be pertinent to ask, granting that he is right, and he sounds fairly reasonable, just who is responsible for this ladylike attitude. Methinks I have heard men murmur that creatures so altogether delectable could do no wrong; methinks I have heard it suggested that males find a certain charm in the so-feminine vagaries and inconsistencies of woman-kind. But, as it is quite ordinarily true, when the aftermath isn't quite so palatable, they object to a theory they themselves started.

WHO'S SURPRISED?

Men and women care much more about their looks than hygiene, according to some figures recently released to prove that women spend more money each year for face powder alone than the whole country spends for tooth paste or powder. This last figure proves that the average individual uses about one and a half tubes of tooth paste a year. Hair dyes, rouges, perfumes, bath salts, all the luxurious cosmetics run the annual cosmetic bill up to nearly $200,000,000.

But why even wonder? Since when has modern living stressed the worth of the practical and unshowy as contrasted with the showy and frivolous?

So. Dixon Community Club Met Wednesday

The South Dixon Community club met Wednesday with Mrs. Roy Fischer, with Mrs. Dan Orgtessen, Mrs. Walter Lievan and Mrs. Robert Lievan assisting.

An appetizing chicken dinner was served at the noon hour to 21 members and guests. The day was spent in being a comforter.

The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. Travis. The opening song was America followed by the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The club then voted to give a needy family $10 worth of groceries.

A reading, "Lincoln," by Mrs. Travis, a reading, "Valentine's Day" by Mrs. Remmers, were included in the enjoyable program. Mrs. Walter Lievan and Mrs. Dave Moor were features of the afternoon, and a candy heart contest was won by Mrs. Henry.

The closing number was a vocal duet, "Carolina Moon," by Mesdames Remmers and Beard.

The entire day was one of great enjoyment to all present. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. David Moore.

St. Paul's Lutheran W.M.S. Met at Church

The Woman's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Lutheran church met Thursday, Feb. 14, in church parlors with Mesdames Long, Scholl, Kling and Cookley as hostesses.

The new president, Mrs. L. W. Walter, opened the meeting with a hymn, "Stand Up for Jesus," and led in prayer. The Bible lesson, "The Lord that Healeth Thee," was given by Mrs. N. H. Long, which was followed by a hymn.

Mrs. Rickard gave the topic of the day, "The Doctor in Africa," which was very interesting. Mrs. W. H. Lenox and Mrs. Alice Walter led in prayer and all united in singing, "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

The business included reports of secretary and treasurer. Reports of the Young Woman's Missionary Society and Light Brigade.

It was voted to have a week of prayer, the committee appointed being Mesdames Rickard, Clymer and Kling.

A mission study class is to be formed under leadership of Mesdames Chiverton, Geisenheimer, Irving and Miss Gonnemann.

The president appointed the following committees for the year: Flower—Mrs. H. Moore, Mrs. W. W. Teschendorf, Mrs. J. Bohnstiel.

Membership—Mrs. O. Beier, Mrs. J. Martenson, Mrs. Bert Orgtessen, Mrs. Robert Fulton, Mrs. J. W. Atkinson.

Finance—Mesdames W. H. Lenox, C. Hank and H. Rasch.

Communications were read by the secretary after which the meeting closed by prayer.

John T. Nolf Won Chicago Artist Prize

The Christian Science Monitor, published in Boston on Feb. 11, has a most interesting article by Charles Fabens Kelley on the "Chicago Show," at the Art Institute, excerpts of which we give below, starting with the opening paragraph of the article:

A very good show exhibition is the "Chicago Show," now open at the Art Institute, though, perhaps not quite so interesting to the general public as last year's exhibition. This may be due to two new rulings of the exhibition committee, one of which eliminates canvases smaller than 18x20, and the other of which stipulates gold frames.

To be sure, the juries have been swamped at times with number of tiny sketches and there have been many hideous frames. The exhibition galleries have gained in dignity and the hanging problem has been simplified by the adoption of this rule, but I believe that there has been a distinct loss to the artists and the public. Many excellent pictures demand another color than gold for their frames, and lose quality when framed in an arbitrary fashion.

A rule that frames must be simple and quiet in color would seem to be all that is necessary. As for restrictions on size, it is the very small and inexpensive picture that tempts the timid buyer to make his first purchase, from which beginning he may go on to more ambitious things. Frequently the demand for a large canvas causes loss of quality in the attempt to stretch a simple idea to too ponderous dimensions.

The hanging problem could be taken care of by devoting one of the smaller galleries to the small canvases, with the under standing, of course, that there should be no let-down in the quality of the work. A solution of this kind would, I believe, be stimulating to the artists and the public. Pictures that are painted to look well in a large gallery seldom look well in a private house, and the "gallery picture" is an artificial thing in most cases.

It is pleasant to see so many figure subjects. Fully two-fifths of the pictures fall in this class, most of them portraits. The whole show has a cheerful "modern" look about it, which is to its credit, for too few "modern" shows are cheerful. There is a refreshing absence of pictures that look as if they had been painted for calendars to be hung in offices. No doubt the majority of the exhibitors are serious people, some of them too serious, but there is not so much exaltation of the trivial as we have seen before.

There are some very good still-life paintings, good in color, arrangement, and unbacked in choice of subject. There seems to be a greater tendency to use figures with landscape, and to represent life and action. There is little muddy color. No matter to what exhibition: one

Mrs. Coolidge Does Some Decorating

In this photo of a couple of "first ladies," you see Mrs. Calvin Coolidge awarding a medal to Miss Hazel Arth, of Washington. Golden-voiced Hazel won first prize in a nation-wide radio audition contest in which 60,000 amateurs took part. Besides the honor of the presentation she wins a $5000 prize and a two year scholarship in any school she chooses.

goes one is reminded of the small girls' protest against being educated when she said, "If more people would write fewer books, how happy we should be." The same dictum can be applied to pictures and paintings, and "Fewer and Better Pictures" might be a good slogan for artists to adopt. Many of the pictures in this exhibition, while agreeable, and well painted, do not seem to have any great artistic significance.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Medal and prize of $750 went to Vladimir Rousseff for "In the Open." Three girls on a picnic, treated in his well-known technique as a sort of well-known idyl. It is pleasant and well done, but the figures do not seem to have any particular relationship to anything but the artist who is painting the picture. The Logan Medal with the $500 prize went to "Uphill," by Edmund Giesbert. It is the largest canvas in the show, and depicts an almost life-size man and horse, struggling up the hill with a heavy load. The idea is well conceived and the composition good, but the color is rather conventional, and it is a bit loosely painted. The Fine Arts Building Purchase Prize of $500 went to Irma Cuen's "White Wings," a blue harbor covered with white-sailed yachts on a sunny day.

The John C. Schaffer Prize of $500

was won by Claude Buck's canvas, "Mother and Children," life-size figures subdued in color and painted with almost painful care. A very consistent piece of technique, it seems to have disregarded textures, and to represent the point of view of a sculptor, rather than a painter—in other words, Mr. Buck seems to have been preoccupied with form. Flora Schofield's summery landscape sketch received the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300.

The Edward B. Butler purchase prize of $200 bought Charles Edwards Mullin's "Arrangement," a boy pulled two other children on a sled. Perhaps its destiny, to be hung in a schoolroom, determined its choice, as it is the sort of thing a child would do.

There is very little sculpture, unfortunately, as there are good sculptors in Chicago who evidently do not consider it worth their while to send anything to the Chicago exhibition. Olga Chassaigne, with a charming little polychrome Shepherd Boy, won the Joseph N. Eisenrath prize of $200. A very fine portrait head of this gifted French girl, a recent arrival in Chicago, the work of her husband, Edouard Chassaigne, is also in the show.

Three of the last year's traveling fellowship holders of the Institute

School won prizes as follows: Davenport Griffen, the Chicago Woman's Club prize of $200 for "Workmen"; Francis Chapin, the William Randolph Hearst prize of $300 for a portrait entitled "Helen"; David McCosh, the Englewood Woman's Club prize of $100 for "Pont Marie Paris."

Other awards were, the Mrs. Julius Rosenwald purchase fund of $200 to Richard A. Chase for "The Children's Boat"; the Harry A. Frank prize of $150 to A. Lou Matthews for "Pioneers"; the Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 to Charles A. Willmovsky for "An Idyl"; the Chicago Woman's Aid prize of $100 to Helen J. Taylor for "Green Apples"; the Marshall Fuller Holmes prize of $100 to Frances Foy for "Boating"; the Julia Knapp Memorial prize of $100 to Madeleine Albert for "Midred"; the Municipal Art League prize of $100 to Edward J. P. Timmons for "Marjorie"; the Mrs. John C. Schaffer prize of $100 to Ruth Sherwood for "Garden Group" (sculpture); the Mrs. William Ormonde Thompson prize of $100 to John T. Nolf for "Boys Plowing"; the Robert Rice Jenkins prize of $50 to Marvin Marr Albright for "Fragment" (sculpture).

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

© 1929 by NEA Service Inc.

If you have children and are going to move, I should try to find a place that conforms to this idea of child specialists as being essential to their health and happiness.

First, try to get a house, or if an apartment is necessary, one with open space around it where the children can play safely.

If you are thinking about a house, look over these things. It should have a good dry cellar under it. No house with a damp cellar under it is healthful. Look at all the plumbing and see if the drains work properly. Examine traps to see if there is a chance of unhealthy sewer gas escaping into the cellar or house.

Look around at the neighborhood. Can the sun get at the house? Children need sun and a lot of it. They should have rooms on the sunny side of the house so that the windows may be put up and the sun flood in, many hours of it, except, of course, when it is very hot weather.

If you have the choice of two houses, one on a street of heavy traffic, and one where danger is less imminent, think over the matter well. Unless you have children you can trust not to go out in the street, or have time for more or less supervision, it would be wise to take the safer place.

It is absolutely necessary for children to play out of doors. A house with some sort of a yard is most desirable. The more yard and grass there is, the more desirable it is from the viewpoint of the doctor. Children need to play outdoors most of the time in summer and a great part of the time in winter.

Observe this: Can the house be easily ventilated? Fresh air is necessary, of course, for young and old. A room without an outside window is no place for sleeping.

Bridge Club Had Delightful Meeting

The North and Side Bridge club with members from both sides of the river had an unusually happy meeting yesterday, enjoying luncheon first and then going to the home of Mrs. Will Hintz on Peoria avenue where they enjoyed bridge. Mrs. Webster Poole was presented the favor for high bridge honors and Mrs. E. S. Rosecrans won the consolation favor. Mrs. Clark Rickard was presented a guest favor from the club, a delightful little surprise. The afternoon proved one of pleasure for all attending.

DEVELOPING THE MIND.

The average man develops less than half of his real mental capacity. The race is constantly producing hundreds of minds potentially as great as those of Einstein, Edison, Ford of Rockefeller, but only two or three out of each hundred ever rise above the commonplace.

These assertions come from the country's leading psychologists, as interviewed by Myron M. Stearns in the February issue of World's Work.

One psychologist is quoted as saying that most men develop hardly more than a fifth of their natural brain power. Another says that every adult, at least up to the age of 50, is as capable of learning new things as a child—but fails to do it. Most of us, says another, stop learning in our teens, and go through the rest of our lives with closed minds.

There is both discouragement and hope in that idea. It is profoundly discouraging to learn that we are failing to accept our opportunities. This modern age specializes in the elimination of waste; yet what could possibly be more wasteful than the habit of letting more than half of our gray matter lie idle?

Yet there is room for hope in it, too. The blindness and stupidity that cause most of the world's unhappiness and suffering are not things that we must always carry with us. We can get rid of them, just as we can get rid of disease and poverty. Surely, if mankind can voluntarily raise its own mental level, almost any kind of optimism is justified.

The trouble, of course, comes from the fact that there is such a wide gulf between what is possible and what is actually done.

We are born with great gifts, but we are also born lazy. We want, more than anything else, to be contented. We hate things that unsettle us. Comfort is the greatest boon life can bring us.

So we follow the path of least resistance and settle into grooves. We find a comfortable place and stick to it. We make ourselves be contented with something inferior, because it would be too much trouble to get the best.

The contentment that comes from a sense of genuine achievement is one of life's greatest blessings. The contentment that most of us get, however—the contentment that means we have stifled our visions of what is high and noble in order that we may put up with something ordinary and commonplace—is a curse. It prevents us from being as fine as we meant to be.

To be restless and dissatisfied is to be unhappy—granted; but it is not possible to make progress in any other way. When a man takes stock of his achievements and feels ashamed because they are no better, instead of proud because they excel those of his neighbor, he is on the way toward attainment.

A SHRINE TO GENERAL LEE.

The movement to purchase the boyhood home of General Robert E. Lee and transform it into a national shrine is attracting country-wide proportions. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York is the latest distinguished person to agree to serve on the national advisory board for the project.

A couple of decades ago there undoubtedly would have been a good deal of unthinking hostility to such a plan. In many parts of the north there would have been protests against honoring "a rebel."

But the passing of time has brought added wisdom. North as well as south, it is now universally realized that Lee, for all that he fought against the Union, was a great man and a splendid American. He is one of the few Civil War heroes whose place in the national affections becomes more firm each year. It is perfectly safe to predict that the movement to turn his birthplace into a national memorial will not meet a dissenting vote.

$9000 FOR CATS.

Relatives of a Boston spinster, who recently died and left a fund of $9000 for the benefit of her three cats, are fighting in court to break the will.

Most people will agree that any woman should have the right to do what she wants to with her own money. Get a $9000 legacy for cats does seem a bit out of proportion. At a time when so many people are in actual want, the setting up of a trust fund to keep these felines in milk and salmon hardly strikes a popular chord.

Girls on Mars are reported to have six legs apiece. The very place for a Scotchman to get his money's worth at a burlesque show.

It won't be long now until Easter when the ladies can high-hat one another.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNOCK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tots and Tinsies waded in, and Scouty broke out in a grin. He walked up to the Sea Man and exclaimed, "You played a trick on us that we'll never forget. And, look at us! We're soaking wet. The way you made the ice all melt was really very slick."

"Oh, kindly don't get mad at me," replied the man. "Why, can't you see that I was merely having fun? And no one's harmed one bit. You're boat filled up just like a sponge, and you all took a funny plunge. Come here upon the hillside. It's a comely place to sit."

Then Clowny shouted, with a frown, "Oh, no! I'm not for sitting down. We'll all catch cold if we loaf 'round. We ought to dry our clothes. Let's build a fire and 'round it swarm and then we'll all get good and warm. We need some sort of heat to take the chill off, goodness knows."

"A great idea," said the man.

"And I will help you if I can. You Tots and Tinsies get the wood and I'll prepare the blaze." The wood was soon piled good and high and shortly smoke rose toward the sky. It settled over head and made a rather pretty haze.

The bunch all sat down near the heat and Carpy sighed, "Ah, this is sweet. I'm getting dry already. And I'm getting hungry, too." The Sea Man quickly jumped and cried, "I know a plan that can be tried. I'll walk out in the water. Then just watch what I will do."

He waded in, not very far, and shortly shouted, "There you are! I've caught a fish. It's bigger than you've ever bought in town. Fix up some sticks to hang it by." Then Scouty shouted, "Me, oh, my! I'm sure we'll all enjoy it, when we've cooked it good and brown."

(The bunch go exploring in the next story.)

THE INAUGURAL PAGEANT

From Washington to Hoover

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

(Associated Press Feature Writer)

Washington—(AP)—Ulysses S.

Grant laid aside his "inevitable cigar" long enough to ride to the capital in an inaugural procession that was the greatest military display Washington had ever witnessed.

The inauguration of the unassuming leader of the Union armies, the most distinguished citizen of the country during the post-war period, attracted a record-breaking crowd to the capital.

Cots were packed into every available space in hotels and houses, and hundreds of visitors, unable to find sleeping quarters, walked the streets all night.

Describing the congestion, the Washington Evening Star of March 4, 1869, said:

One original Grant man from the back settlements, with a carpet bag in each hand and a feline on each arm, was seen about 2 o'clock this morning near the Circle, having vainly tried at every home between the depot and that point for a sleeping place.

Windows, balconies and porticoes fronting upon Pennsylvania avenue were in great demand by parade spectators and negotiations for vantage points were in progress early in February. From $25 to $50 was paid for single windows overlooking the line of procession, and "one gentleman having a fine balcony in front of his residence declined $150 for the use, preferring to have it for the use of his family and friends."

Many famous Civil war regiments, a small body of Mexican war veterans, and 30 soldiers of the War of 1812 were in the procession. The old warriors of 1812 rode in a lavishly decorated omnibus drawn by six white horses.

Grant, however, disappointed the spectacle-lovers who had counted upon seeing him in his full uniform as commanding general of the United States armies. He had no taste for display of this sort and avoided it just as he declined the pomp of a triumphal entry into Richmond after his capture. So the former "tanner's boy," wearing a severely plain black suit, rode in an open carriage through lanes of wildly cheering people.

There was a "terrific jam" at the inaugural ball, which was held in the new wing of the treasury building. Many fainted from the heat and pressure of the crowd and "swoning ladies were handed about in a matter of course way." A Washington reporter said:

"The venerable white head and spectacles of Horace Greeley made him a conspicuous object wherever he moved, causing him to be recognized by everybody. In the midst of the gay throng, he looked like a cat in a strange garret, and was continually getting stranded in the most hopeless position."

"He swore a good deal in the oddest and most miscellaneous style when jammed and jolted for two hours in the cloak rooms in quest of his white overcoat. One would as soon expect a bullet from a roscub as an oath from Horace Greeley, but he certainly did curse most ferociously on this occasion."

Washington shoe polishers, augmented by a small army of bootblacks from Philadelphia, gave inaugural visitors "a Grant shine for a dime." In the evening, guests at the Metropolitan hotel amused themselves by throwing nickels into the streets for the scrambling bootblacks. The chief feature of the observance of New Year's day, 1873, in Washington was the "almost total absence of wines and liquors. The example in this respect was set at the White House. It has been the custom heretofore to furnish the policemen and attendants with refreshments which have included something to drink as well as something to eat. Today the President directed that refreshments be furnished as usual, with coffee substituted for liquors."

The talking movies have opened a new path over which the broadcast technician may travel. KFI, Los Angeles, say that a number of its former operators now are working in Hollywood, where they are taking care of the pickup equipment for voice reproduction.

Charles Evans Hughes will pay a tribute to America's first President in a talk to be broadcast from the studios of WEAF over a coast-to-coast chain at 7:30 p. m., Eastern time, February 22. His subject will be "The Debt the Nation Owes George Washington."

When the Washington Society of Alexander holds its annual celebration in the old Presbyterian meeting house in Alexandria, Va., the afternoon program will be broadcast by WJZ and associated stations. Besides a pageant an address will be made by Albert Bushnell Hart, historian.

Silas Strawn, former president of the American Bar association, spoke over the radio from Chicago, but few there heard him. The speech was broadcast by a chain from Chicago but no local station was in the hook-up. The nearest station was KSTP, St. Paul-Minneapolis, which is difficult for Chicagoans to pick up in the daytime.

Pollen Growths Set

Record for Speed

Bloomington, Ind.—(AP)—The world's record in speed of germination, though it has not been fixed, is at least closely approached by some pollens studied at the University of Indiana.

Among 705 pollens of a large number of plants, a few were found that began germination within less than one minute. The germination was done in water carrying sugar solutions. Some pollen required many hours to begin germination.

The studies were conducted by Prof. F. M. Andrews and reported in a paper for the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

CLOSE-UP OF MAN WHO MAY BE NEXT STATE SECRETARY

Henry Stimson, Talked of for Cabinet, Was Once Secretary of War

Washington—Sixteen years is a long time between cabinets. Few men have appeared as cabinet members after so extended a period.

But Henry L. Stimson may be one of them—will be, if predictions that Herbert Hoover will make him secretary of state are correct.

Stimson served in the cabinet so long ago that many Americans, no doubt, have forgotten all about it. He was secretary of war under President Taft, and it was while serving in that capacity that he laid the ground work for his recent successful occupancy of the post of governor-general of the Philippines.

Eventful Career
Born in New York in 1867, the son of a widely known surgeon, Stimson has had a varied and eventful career. It has brought him experience with all kinds of men in all kinds of places; has made him a student of men, an aggressive leader who, his friends say, cannot be budged from his position once he has made up his mind.

As a boy he got his preparatory school education at Phillips-Andover Academy, in Massachusetts, and then went to Yale. His social standing at Yale can be gauged from the fact that he was elected a member of the famous "Bones" society there. Later he went to Harvard to study law, and immediately afterward went to work in the law office of Elihu Root.

His professional advance was rapid. Two years later he was made Root's partner, and when Theodore Roosevelt became president, Stimson was appointed United States attorney for the southern district of New York.

Prosecuted Sugar Frauds.
In that office Stimson showed himself a man of force and ability. He won considerable fame for his prosecution of the "under-weighting" frauds of certain sugar companies, and forced these companies to pay the government $2,400,000 in back duties. He also was the man who jailed Charles W. Morse for violation of the national banking laws, and he made a number of successful prosecutions of railroads for improper rebates.

In 1909 he went to Washington to be an assistant attorney general, and in 1911 President Taft made him secretary of war. It was in this post that Stimson made one of the friendships that he valued most highly; the friendship of Gen. Leonard Wood. General Wood was chief of staff at that time, and consequently was thrown in close contact with Stimson. From this friendship Stimson drew two things that were to influence him profoundly in later years: a deep interest in the Philippines, and an absorbing liking for military training. General Wood had just conceived his famous idea of national military training camps, and he quickly "sold" Stimson on it.

Served in France
When the World War broke out, Stimson—who had been back in private life for a number of years—hurried to Plattsburg, which was the direct outgrowth of his own and Wood's enthusiasm. He went through the course of training there, although over military age, went to France for further training at Chaumont, and became a lieutenant-colonel in the 305th Field Artillery, A. E. F. After the war Stimson left the army and returned to the private practice of law. For several years he remained in that pursuit; then, in 1926, President Coolidge made him his personal representative on a difficult mission to Nicaragua. Clothed with authority from the president, Colonel Stimson went to Nicaragua to bring about the end of hostilities there. He induced Moncada, the liberal general, to lay down his arms, and arranged for the recent election which ended the turmoil in that distressed country.

Returning to America, Stimson was soon off on another mission—this time a private one. He went to Manila to make an extended visit with his friend, General Wood, then governor-general of the Philippines.

On this visit Stimson got a first-hand view of conditions in the islands. He stayed there for six weeks, discussing affairs with General Wood and making himself thoroughly familiar with the issues and problems which have made the governor-generalship of the Philippines one of the toughest jobs the United States can offer a man.

Sandino's Ace Bagged by Marine

Bagging bandits in tropical climes has become almost a habit with Lieutenant Herman Hanneken, lower left, of the United States Marines. His newest feat is the single-handed capture of the rebel chief Sandino's leading general, Manuel Jiron, above, whose band is responsible for many outrages on the east coast of Nicaragua. Lieutenant Hanneken already had gained distinction by trapping the wily bandit Charlemagne in Haiti in 1919, going alone through several lines of sentries.

This study stood him in good stead later. General Wood, in ill health, returned to the United States and soon after died. President Coolidge promptly named Stimson governor-general in Wood's place.

Stimson went to the islands announcing that he would follow Wood's policies in all things. He proved himself a man of such tact and diplomacy, however, that before he had been on the job six months he had won the good will and confidence of nearly all the native leaders.

Five Held for "Most Brutal Murder"

Tell-tale wagon tracks led from the dank South Georgia swamp in which lay the mutilated body of Ira Byrd, a farmer, back to Byrd's own home. Officers discovered first the "death wagon," then crimson stains on a porch and later blood spots on an axe. With these as a nucleus they built up a murder case against the slain man's widow, with whom he had quarreled, and four neighboring farmers. For the first time... CLASSIC ART deliberately utilized in motor car design

NOTE how the dynamic symmetry of Chrysler's design expresses the very essence of life and motion, just as the counterpoints in the "wave" lines of the classic masterpieces of architecture and design.

THAT Chrysler motor cars are so different in appearance from all other motor cars is not to be wondered at in view of the unique plan by which their remarkable beauty has been attained.

Chrysler engineers recognized, as no others had recognized, that true beauty in automobile design must come, not from a chance inspiration of individual designers, but from a conscious and deliberate plan.

Guided by glorious precedents in art, architecture and design, they applied the authentic forms of beauty which have come down the centuries unchallenged and unsurpassed and translated them into terms of motor car utility and beauty.

It is because Chrysler style and beauty have this secure artistic foundation that they have won the admiration and enthusiasm of thousands upon thousands the country over.

New Chrysler "65"—Six body styles priced from $1040 to $1145. New Chrysler "75"—Nine body styles priced from $1535 to $2345. New Chrysler Imperial—Five custom body styles priced from $2675 to $3475. All prices f. o. b. factory.

FIELDS GIVEN DECISION OVER BABY JOE GANS

Had Wide Margin in Their Scrap Last Night in Garden

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
New York, Feb. 16.—(AP)— Jackie Fields, a flustered idea of perpetual motion, has begun an eastern invasion with another victory over Baby Joe Gans, Negro battler from Fields' own home town of Los Angeles.

Boring in with both fists flying at all times, Fields battered out a decisive triumph on points over Gans in a 10-round match in Madison Square Garden last night.

The official verdict gave Fields the 147-pound championship of Los Angeles but it did nothing much in the way of strengthening his position as the leading contender for Joe Dundee's welterweight crown and toga.

Outweighing the Negro by five and a half pounds, Fields appeared certain to win on a knockout as early as the second round. He had Gans stunned and reeling mid-way through this session but apparently didn't know what to do with him now that he had him. It was the same story in the third round when a looping overhand right followed by a left hook, Fields' best weapon, had Gans holding on desperately. Try as he might, Fields could not finish his man. After that Jackie had no more of the golden opportunities to send the crowd of some 15,000 home early.

Gans, apparently more concerned with staying the limit than with giving tit for tat, showed a momentary flash of his usual form in the fourth round which he took by a wide margin.

Hooks and Slides

Looks Kinda Mean
Bert Niehoff, former manager of the Atlantic Southern Association club, was signed as coach of the New York Giants to be held as bait for a deal with the Boston Braves, according to a story passed around by the southern magnates and believed, apparently, by some of them.

It seems, according to the story, that Judge Emil Fuchs, owner of the Braves, was going after Niehoff to manage his club but the Giants were one move ahead of him. The Judge then signed Johnny Evers as an assistant manager and announced that he, himself, personally would manage his own team.

McGraw, according to the tale, believes that he can make a deal with the Braves for Niehoff and if he is not successful he will not be holding the bag, as Niehoff ought to be a mighty valuable assistant.

Giants Nice That Way
Of if you believe the stories about the real nature of the various acts of friendship that have been displayed between the Boston and New York owners you might figure that the Giants were helping the Braves to get a manager under cover to step into Boston if the Judge finds out that his training on the judicial bench did not qualify him for a gavel swinging job on a seat in the dugout.

Cards Will Not Learn
The St. Louis Cardinals learned that some difficulties could be encountered in doing business with a big business man when they allowed Rogers Hornsby to become a business man in their own firm.

Another slight difficulty of similar nature was encountered when the Cardinals signed Fred Haney, a former big league infielder, from the minors.

Haney notified the Cards that he was elated at getting back into the majors and that he was flattered to get back with such a good ball club—but he said he couldn't join the Cardinals unless he got a clause in the contract giving him the right to purchase his release or assuring him of a release to a Pacific Coast League club if he didn't make good in St. Louis.

His reason was that he had an insurance business with 29 branches in California and that if he couldn't be a major leaguer he would have to be a minor leaguer near his own business.

Sign This Fellow, Dempsey
Dick Cox who used to occupy some of the Brooklyn outfield, threatened the Shreveport club that he was going to retire and take up the prize fight business. Rather, he said he was going to resume the prize fight business.

He pointed out that he was a good middleweight fighter and that he had decided to go into baseball on the flip of a coin. Cox was in the Texas League when Art Shires, the White Sox first baseman, was there, and Shires is rated as the best man in the league with his fists.

Cox, however, insists that Shires never even offered him an argument and he denies the story heard several years ago that Frank Snyder, then catching for the Giants, cleaned him.

Overweighting the Negro by five and a half pounds, Fields appeared certain to win on a knockout as early as the second round. He had Gans stunned and reeling mid-way through this session but apparently didn't know what to do with him now that he had him. It was the same story in the third round when a looping overhand right followed by a left hook, Fields' best weapon, had Gans holding on desperately. Try as he might, Fields could not finish his man. After that Jackie had no more of the golden opportunities to send the crowd of some 15,000 home early.

GRIFFITH WAS GIVEN POPULAR VERDICT IN BOUT

But Referee Decided That Lomski Best- ed Him Last Eve

BY CHARLEY W. DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Detroit, Feb. 16.—(AP)—Jerry "Tuffy" Griffith, the wallop from Sioux City, Iowa, today holds a popular if not an official decision over Leo Lomski, acknowledged as the leading challenger for the world's light heavyweight championship, as a result of their close 10 round battle in the Olympia Arena last night.

The verdict of Elmer "Slim" McClelland, the referee, went to Lomski, but the cheers of 14,000 spectators went to Griffith. The decision, proclaiming Lomski the winner, was loudly and persistently booed. Besides the tumult of jeers, there was a shower of papers and programs from the gallery. Majority of the spectators thought Griffith was entitled to the decision and they gave him one by acclamation.

Unbiased ring observers agreed today that the battle was so close that it could have been awarded to either man. McClelland figured that Lomski, the "Assassin" from Aberdeen, Wash., won the last three rounds by a conclusive margin and therefore was entitled to the verdict.

At times Griffith outboxed the contender from the Pacific coast. He displayed surprising speed with the left and that he repeatedly jabbed to Lomski's face. Several times he forced Lomski to retreat from the force of rights to the head and he continually jumped forward with left hooks to the body. He made his greater strength and long reach count in his bid for victory.

BIG TEN BASKET BALL RACE GETS BACK INTO PACE

The Five Games, Scheduled for Tonight, Likely to Change Aspect

By PAUL R. MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Feb. 16.—(AP)—The scramble for the Big Ten basketball championship lunges back into its full, dizzy stride again tonight with a five-game program that may jar the present standings from roof to basement.

The battlefront: Purdue at Northwestern, Wisconsin at Indiana, Ohio State at Illinois, Chicago at Iowa, and Michigan at Minnesota.

Michigan, which is tied with Wisconsin and Purdue for first place, was the only team among the leaders to be reasonably certain of victory. Minnesota has lost six straight games and apparently will be unable to stop the machine-like offense of Coach George Veenker's men.

The Northwestern-Purdue clash stood out as the banner event on the busy card. While Purdue has been idle since January 21, Northwestern has developed into the most sensational team in the race. After dropping their first three games, the Wildcats have come back with a rush that they have won four straight conference games, including that with Michigan last Monday night.

Tonight, the Wildcats will have their star center, "Rut" Walter, who has been out for several weeks with an injured knee, and if "Stretch" Murphy and his mates win they will be forced to the limit.

Wisconsin, too, faces a dangerous opponent in Indiana. The Hoosiers have lost five games out of seven during the campaign and are definitely out of the race, but have been considerably strengthened by the return of Dale Wells at forward, and threaten to cause the Badgers plenty trouble. Wisconsin defeated them, 24 to 20, in their first engagement but has been idle since January 21 and may be stale.

For the first time in weeks, Iowa had its entire squad off the sick list and seemed certain of defeating Chicago, which has dropped seven straight games. Iowa, however, had to work at full steam to defeat the Maroons, 23 to 21, here February 2.

The Ohio State-Illinois game will have no direct bearing on the championship as each team has lost three games.

Commission to Pick
Referee for Battle
Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The Massachusetts Boxing Commission today was considering a list of several referees from which the members will choose the third man in the ring for the Sharkey-Stribling heavyweight boxing match in Flamingo Park here February 27.

The selection, however, must receive the final approval of Managers of the principals in the Miami Beach battle. This plan was suggested by Stribling at yesterday's conference on a referee. The selection must be made by February 20. Otherwise, Dempsey said, he will do the picking himself.

It also was decided at yesterday's meeting that the fighters should do a little more training for the forthcoming bout.

Notre Dame to Meet

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 16.—(AP)—The world's indoor record for the 60-yard dash will be under fire again tonight from Jack Elder, Notre Dame star, who has equalled the mark eight times during his college career.

Elder will lead his mates against Illinois in a dual track and field meet with his hopes set on shattering the mark hit has foiled him so often.

ways. Between their two business centers now lies a third, catering to the University.

As the university is the community's biggest industry, it will not be out of place to devote a little more in the history of this extraordinary institution.

The first attempt to establish an "Illinois University" was in a bill introduced in the state legislature in 1833. Springfield was named for the location and opposition immediately developed among friends of the infant colleges of McKendree and Snruttless. Other persons were frightened by the orge of taxation and the bill was defeated.

Again in 1831 the state senate passed "An act to establish a state university" but upon reconsideration the bill was laid upon the table.

Twelve years later the Illinois legislature formally accepted the provisions made by congress under the Morrill land grant, received 480,000 acres, and in 1867 passed a bill giving any county, city, township or incorporated town the power to vote bonds and make proposals for securing the location of the university.

Champaign county immediately got busy and its offer was accepted. Governor Oglesby approved the act incorporating Illinois Industrial University on Feb. 26, 1867, and the Rev. John Milton Gregory, president of Kalamazoo College, Michigan, was selected first president.

The university trustees tried out a manual labor system at the start and all students, except those physically unfit, were required to work from one to three hours a day. Their stipend was eight cents an hour and they went to their duties in squads under military officers. Later the labor was made voluntary.

Women were first admitted to the University in 1870. The story is told that a group of boys listened to the deliberations of the trustees through a friendly stove-pipe hole. When the vote finally was taken and announced as favorable an approving shout came down the stove pipe.

As the institution developed its name came in for criticism and in 1895 Gov. Oglesby approved a bill rechristening it the University of Illinois.

In the short span of its life it has grown to rank third in the number of full time students. The university holds title to nearly 3,000 acres of land and spends some $5,000,000 a year. Its activities have extended to Chicago where it has established three of its colleges.

Of the twin cities Urbana is the elder. The first settler came in the fall of 1822. Champaign county was established in 1833 and Urbana was named as its capital. Today it counts 14,715 within its borders, an increase of 46 per cent since the 1920 census. Leading its industries are the Peoria and Eastern railroad shops employing 350 men, followed by sixty smaller manufacturing plants.

There seems to be plenty of public spirit in Urbana for its citizens a few years ago dug up $350,000 for a hotel and also raised $250,000 by popular subscription last year for the Eastern Illinois Memorial Sanitarium. It has made a half million dollar investment in its park system covering 17½ acres. Incidentally one of its slogans is "Urbana—99 per cent literate."

When the Illinois Central ran its railroad down from Chicago in 1854 it erected its depot two miles west of the Urbana court house. Business began to gravitate toward the railroad and in April 1857 a village or organization was voted under the name of West Urbana. Three years later the name was changed to Champaign. The new city has outstripped the old for Champaign entered the new year with a population of 24,654, a healthy increase of 55 per cent in nine years.

Industrially Champaign turns out forgings, road machinery, electrical equipment, concrete products, candles, chemicals, awnings, tents, mattresses and electrical fixtures.

San Francisco—(AP)—The debt gnawers of oriental women, famed for fashioning delicate pottery and embroidering silken things have turned to the piano. Miss Yolanda Kusakabe is the first musician of the east ever to achieve wide recognition on the concert stage. She is now in America for the first time and will within a few weeks, leave for Rome. Woman, Aged 100, Happy in Hatred of Male of Species

Boston, England—(AP)—Miss Wilhelmina Robinson has reached the age of 100 years. "I detest men," she avowed on reaching the century mark, "and I put down my long and happy life to the fact that I was never foolish enough to marry one."
Miss Wilhelmina wears a frilly cap and shares her rooms with two milk-white cats—both ladies. "Single women have a far better life than any wife," said the white-haired little spinster. "Married women are always ailing with something or other. The hospitals are full of them."
"The girls of today are a scandal. It is men, men, men, all the time."
"I never asked any man to marry me—and no one ever asked me to marry him," she said. "I always hated men."

Eastern Names For New Spring Silks

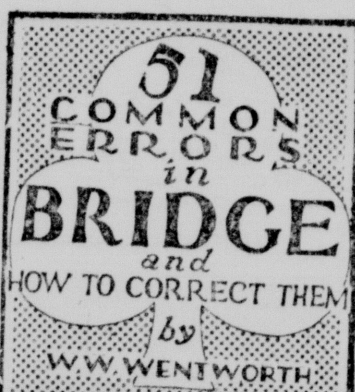

BY DIANA MERWIN
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)
Paris—(AP)—Oriental names are introduced into the fabric vocabulary for spring by Rodier, the French fabric manufacturer, who gave the words kasha and djersa-kasha to the fashion language. Tchinsou and sumida are the most important of the new materials with Eastern names.
Tchinsou is a lightweight silk with texture like a super-quality chiffon of fine weave. Much of it is printed with small delicate designs influenced by Japanese art and colorings. Sumida is a heavier silk with a finish like very fine cashmere wool. It is also used for printed patterns, of oriental character. The two silks are combining for square and triangular scarves of the colorings and oriental or modernistic printed patterns.
Wool volis promises to be an important spring dress material. Rodier shows it extensively in plain color and fine checks.
Beige is the basis for the summer collection of the premier French manufacturer of woolsens. He shows many cream and brown mixtures and fabric weaves for coats. Plain beige and beige mixtures are the leading color for coat materials, with dark blue following. Almost no black is included in Rodier's spring fabrics and not a great deal of black and white.

Novelties for sweaters are a porous wool fancy weave jersey called "moussa miltous," meaning thous and holes, and a feather-weight jersey for sweaters and scarves named djersaplume or feather-jersey.
Rudie is a new coating with heavy threads and fancy basket weave. It is shown in beige and dark blues largely.

♣ A 9

The Bidding: South bids no-trump and all pass.

Deciding the Play: West leads 5 of diamonds. How should Declarer proceed to make game?

The Error: Declarer takes first trick with Ace of diamonds and then finesse Queen of clubs which is won by West with King of clubs, thus blocking the club suit and sacrificing game.

The Correct Method: Declarer should win the first trick with King of diamonds, then play Ace of clubs and 9 of clubs overtaking with Queen of clubs if King of clubs is not forced, continuing clubs until it is forced. The Ace of diamonds now serves as the re-entry to make the remaining clubs and game cannot be prevented.

The Principle: When holding a suit headed by West-Jack-10 in Dummy, and A-K in closed hand or vice versa, it is usually a winning play to capture the first trick.

hold arts and past president of the Illinois Home economics association declared in a radio address today. "Sociologists tell us," she said, "that we should think of the United States, not as 120,000,000 people, but as 23,000,000 homes. The comfort and efficiency of these homes are dependent on the skill and interest of those responsible for them."

"With the changing conditions of the modern world we realize that many of our girls will not be called upon to prepare food and make clothes. This has led to a greater emphasis on training in wise choice and careful buying. The kind of food she eats determines her health and ability to work and play, the clothing she wears makes her more or less attractive, the ability to buy wisely enables her to make the most of the money she earns or is given by others."

"We have come to realize that the physical care is not sufficient to insure a successful home. With the increasing complexity of modern life, the relationships of those within it call for a fine adjustment which should be shared by all. A code of ethics for family life should be built up by care and study. The success of home depends on all its members, not on the effort of the mother alone."

Shepherd's Sunday School Class in Meet

The monthly meeting of the Shepherd's Sunday school class of the Grace Evangelical church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Howe Thursday evening. The program was in charge of the president, Daniel Palmer. After singing a chorus "Give Me Oil in My Lamp", the Scripture lesson, Psalm 103, was read by Murray Wentling and prayer was offered by Mrs. Ida Hartman, teacher of the class. Following the business session a very interesting talk was given by the teacher, telling of the work of the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago. A reading entitled "The Beulah Railroad", was given by Vade Pierce. Two verses of "America were sung and the pastor offered prayer. A social time was enjoyed by the large number present. A Valentine grab bag was the feature of the evening.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Wm. Joynt and Mrs. Geo. Howe. The next meeting will be held at the home of Raymond Long, 615 Assembly Place, on March 21st.

Charming Party for Miss Ruth Kling

Mrs. Casper Blimling and daughter, Miss Frances Blimling entertained at their home on Tuesday evening with a charming party in honor of Miss Ruth Kling, who is soon to become the bride of Harold Spencer, of Dixon.

An enjoyable evening was spent in playing cards and a very tempting two-course luncheon was served. Table decorations were in pink and green, pink sweet peas and pink tapers being used. The menu was also carried out in the same colors. The guests presented Miss Kling with a lovely electric toaster as a token of their friendship.

Ladies Aid Dinner Club Was Entertained

The Ladies Aid Dinner Club of St. Paul's Lutheran church met at the home of Mrs. James Boyer, 77 Harrison avenue Wednesday in an all day "swing." The attendance was small but the ladies present were most industrious and tied two comforters and finished them also, a good day's work. The delicious picnic dinner was well worth the effort made to attend and the ladies all had a delightful day with Mrs. Boyer.

Box Social-Program Was Much Enjoyed

The entertainment and box social given by Miss Evelyn July for the benefit of Adrian school, Dist. 123, was largely attended and netted the

THE FUTURE MRS. LINDBERGH

The Family's Own Picture of Girl Who Is to Wed the World-Famous Flyer in the Near Future

Here is the best picture ever made of Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, fiancée of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's recent etching that was made for members of her family. This copy was obtained by The Dixon Evening Telegraph and NEA Service from Mrs. Charles Cutter of Cleveland, Ohio, who is Miss Morrow's maternal grandmother. Very few photographs of Miss Morrow have ever been taken and this crayon portrait, for which she posed only recently, is said to be the best likeness in existence.

school the fine total of $10740. R. M. Rowland of Rochelle was awarded the pretty berry set offered by the teacher. Five children who took part in the program, three from the first, second and third grades, deserved special mention, as they needed no prompting. A home-talent play, "Double Crossed" was well presented, and two readings by Miss Alma Bedford, who home is near Chicago, a friend of Miss July, greatly amused the audience.

Party on Valentine Day at Weiser Home

Mrs. Frank Weiser delightfully entertained a number of friends with a Valentine party at her home, 116 East Eighth street Thursday afternoon. The rooms were prettily decorated in Valentine colors and motifs appropriate to the occasion. The afternoon was spent in social chat and radio. The hostess served refreshments at 4 o'clock. Those present included Mesdames Hugh Keenan, Ernest Whites, bread, James McGrail, Rena Hawkins, Leonard Thompson and a few out-of-town guests.

He finally ran to an alarm box.

THE DENTIST

The dentist, a servant whom most people dread, Would rather do something more kind, Than to chisel your teeth while he's holding your head, Or a dozen or more of them grind.

The world of the dentist is not very clear;

His business depends upon you;

So when there's a pain in your molars severe,

You know the right thing you should do.

He wants you to sit in his nice easy chair,

Your face tilted up toward the sky;

But even this easiness gives you a scare,

And you feel that you're going to die.

But faint, foolish hearts should not shudder with fright,

While lounging in lassitude thus;

For though your bicusps may hurt when you bite,

The dentist will banish the fuss.

He has an assortment of wonderful tools,

Utensils unique, large and small;

He's learned how to use them in some certain schools;

Let's see what he does with them all.

The cute little drill with that music all hum,

Which you are so anxious to see,

He'll hold in your tooth while with pain on are dumb

And woefully wish you were free.

If one of your teeth is so swollen and sore

Your cheek hangs out over your jaw,

He'll take that keen knife which most people abhor,

And "crunch"—now you know what you saw.

The forceps are there, and when lying in state

He extracts your teeth one by one;

A passion of helplessness, anguish and hate,

Comes over you before he is done.

There's gold and there's silver, there's floss and there's wax,

And cotton in pellets and rolls;

And pliers, and tweezers, a hammer for tacks,

And vials the pain to control.

He asks: "Does it hurt?" when your mouth's open wide,

While cotton bales flirt with your tongue;

You groan in reply, then with that as his guide

He soon has the gold-filling hung.

Ho! Ho! for the dentist! Hats off! Get the band!

This servant so misunderstood Should cease being dreaded. Let's give him a hand

He makes you have pain to do good.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

When RUTH LESTER, secretary, finds the dead body of her employer, "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, sprawled on the floor beneath the window of his private office, she runs at once to the office of her fiancé, JACK HAYWARD. His office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's.

Finding Jack out, Ruth searches for his pistol, which he had purchased at the same time he bought an identical weapon for her to keep in her desk. His gun is gone!

Petrified with fear, she recalls Jack's incriminating behavior of the past Saturday and his angry threat against Borden.

When Jack returns, he accompanies Ruth to Borden's suite and, while he phones for the police, she hurries to close the airshaft window in the private office, fearing Jack shot Borden across the airshaft. The window is already closed! Ruth tells DETECTIVE McMANN of Borden's two Saturday morning visitors, RITA DEBOIS, night club dancer, and MRS. BORDEN, his wife and mother of his two children, who called for her monthly attorney check. Mrs. Borden comes in during the questioning and McManm accuses her of the murder, but she denies it. Ruth tells McManm of the pistol in her desk but when he looks for it, it is gone! They find footprints of a pigeon in dried blood on the window ledge and on the floor near the door indicate the window was open when Borden was shot. Ruth's fear for Jack grows but McManm insists Ruth is the murderer of Borden! MORAN, the elevator operator's testimony makes things look black for Ruth when McManm suddenly asks whose office is that across the airshaft. When he learns it is Jack's, he asks the elevator operator what time on Saturday afternoon Jack returned to his office.

OTTO PFUGGER hunched his shoulders and rammed his hands deeper into the pockets of his uniform. "I dunno—about two o'clock, I guess. I ain't keepin' tabs on them that's got a right to come and go."

"I can tell you almost to the minute when I returned and when I left the building," Jack Hayward settled the question matter-of-factly. "Miss Lester and I went to lunch at the Chester Hotel, and just before dessert was served I discovered that I had left the theater tickets on my desk. We were going to a matinee. I looked at my watch, found that it was 10 minutes to two, and walked rapidly from the Chester to the Starbridge Building—a distance of only two blocks. I didn't have to wait for the elevator, so it must have been not later than five or six minutes of two when I got off at the seventh floor. I went to my office and—"

"Just a minute!" McManm interrupted. "I'd just a little bit rather have Otto's story before you have a chance to tell him what he remembers. And you might unclench that fist of yours, Hayward. I'm afraid you'll sprain your fingers, and that would be too bad."

Now, Otto, how long was Mr. Hayward in his office before he went back down again in your car?"

"It was about 10 minutes after I took him up before I took him down again, I guess, because I sent my kid brother, what was hangin' around in the lobby, over to the drug store across the street to get me a cup of coffee, right after I'd took Mr. Hayward up, and I'd drunk him down."

McManm nodded. "That's all right. Now, Otto, how long was Mr. Hayward in his office before he went back down again in your car?"

NEXT LEADER OF DEVIL DOGS REAL TEARIN' SCRAPPER

General Neville, Member of Corps for Forty Years, Battler

By NEA Service Washington — The United States marine corps is known as one of the most rearin', tearin', full-of-fight organizations on the globe; and it begins to look as if President Coolidge picked the fightingest man in the whole outfit when he nominated Major General Wendell C. Neville for commandant of the corps, succeeding Major General John F. Lejeune, who is retiring from active service.

Neville, who is not quite 59 years old, has packed about as much active service into his career as the most adventurous could wish. He has so many medals and ribbons for bravery and distinguished service that his chest will hardly hold them all. Also—though this, perhaps, would go without saying—he has the cold-steel eyes and the square jaw that go with high military command the world over.

A Naval Cadet at 16 Neville was born in Virginia on May 12, 1870. He was appointed a cadet in the naval academy at the age of 16, and on his graduation entered the marine corps, being commissioned as a second lieutenant in 1892.

To start his career he saw considerable service afloat. The ancient cruiser Cincinnati, then a fine, modern boat, was his first ship, followed by the battleship Texas and the cruiser Raleigh. Then, in 1898, things began to happen. Neville became a first lieutenant, and the United States went to war with Spain.

With the first marine battalion, Neville went to Cuba and participated in the battles of Guantanamo and Cuzco, distinguished himself for bravery on each occasion and winning promotion to a captaincy for conspicuous gallantry at the former engagement.

The war presently ended, but Neville's adventures did not. The outbreak of the Philippine insurrection caused a marine brigade to be sent to Manila, and Neville was one of the men chosen. Before the men reached the island however, the Boxer rebellion in China had started, and Neville went there to see a good deal more active service.

After this was over he went to the Philippines, remaining there for several years. In 1906, as a major, he went with the First Expeditionary Marine Brigade to Cuba, where he helped the army to Cuban pacification untangle a few snarls. Then followed sea duty, on the old warships Prairie, Buffalo and Dixie followed by shore assignments at Washington, Honolulu and Charleston.

Landed at Vera Cruz In 1914 came more excitement. As a lieutenant colonel, Neville commanded the Second Regiment of Marines at Vera Cruz. This battle does not loom large in the history books, but it provided plenty of sharp fighting and cost a number of young men their lives; and when it was all over Neville held the Medal of Honor for "coolness and unaffected bravery under fire."

The next two or three years were more peaceful. But 1917 saw the crowning activity of all. Neville, now holding the temporary rank of brigadier general, went to France to command the famous Fifth Marine Regiment.

What that regiment did at Chateau Thierry is a matter of history. Neville's handling of it during the terrific fighting there won him promotion to command of the Fourth Brigade of marines in the subsequent operations at Soissons, St. Mihiel, the Champagne, and the Meuse-Argonne. Following the armistice he went to Coblenz with the American army of occupation.

For his World War service Neville was decorated with the French Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerre (with four palms), the U. S. Army Distinguished Service Medal and the U. S. Navy Distinguished Service Medal.

That is the service record of the marine corps' new commander—a fighting man heading a fighting outfit.

OPERATE WITH MAGNET Montreal —An operation was performed here on a Canadian war veteran with the aid of a magnet. The vet had been troubled with a bullet in his lung for ten years and it was in such a position that it could not be reached with forceps. A powerful magnet was held on his chest to attract the nickel-jacketed bullet to a point within reach of the surgeon's instruments.

Rochelle—The January-February Division of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid society are completing plans for the presentation on Tuesday, February 19th at 8:00 p. m. in the church parlors of a comedy the title of which is "The Spinsters' Club." The cast will include members of the society a number of whom appeared in the very successful and entertaining presentation put on by the same organization last year—"The Old Folks Concert." The plot of such it is! deals with a group of spinsters in search of a man. Acknowledging no obstacles some of them go to the limit and are re-made into the charming flapper maidens we know today, in their effort to land a husband. The play abounds in clever and amazing situations and the characters are fitting into the parts assigned so well that one pauses to wonder. Tickets may be procured at Rowland's Pharmacy or from any member of the committee.

Clarence Pearson, eighth grade student at Central School, is quite a musical instrument maker. The young man is displaying a banjo made all by himself and at the present time he is finishing a violin.
